AYERS ANSWERS.

Makes Public Basis of Charges In Trigg County.

Shows Why He Said He Knew Who Wrote Letter To Robt Wallis.

A Fulton special to the Courier-Journal says:

In support of his statement made in his annual report, that he knew the author of an anonymous letter received by Robert Wallace, of Rinaldo, Mott Ayres, State Fire Marshal, Saturday made public the facts which he secured and which he presented to the Trigg County grand jury. The Fulton Daily Leader contained the exhibits in the case, showing the basis to the statement made by Mr. Ayres that he knew who had written the letter.

It has been charged by the county Attorney of Trigg county that Mr. Ayres failed to produce any evidence in support of his statement that he knew the author of the anonymous letter received by Mr. Wallace, and also that Mr. Ayres failed to appear before the grand jury, as he said he would, to testify regarding the letter. These charges against Mr. Ayres caused him to make public the evidence he secured.

About October 6, 1906, Mr. Wallace received an anonymous letter inclosed in one of the Champion Bridge Company's envelopes--the printed name of the Champion Bridge Company having been crudely erased.

A comparison of the two characters of envelopes shows conclusively that the anonymous letter was inclosed in one of the Champion Bridge Company's envelopes. The letter was as follows:

Oet. the 3 1906 Mr. Bob Wallace kind Sir and friend I take this opportunity to write you a few lines in regard to the course you are taken. Now Mr. Wallace We are tired of the Trust robbing the people. So we are determined to down them at all hazards and we consider you one of those Scoundrels. So if you are going to pin your faith to the avowed enemy of your own people you will have to take pot luck with the. We mean just exactly what we say, we are not going to lay down and be robbed by you at all now my brother it will pay you to lay low and keep quiet.

A hint to the wise is sufficient we dont want to have to go after you but if we have to we can do it and do it to perfection. yours Truly answer at once a member of The D. T. P. A.

Prior to October 1906, the Champion Bridge Company of Wilmington, Ohio, sent to Magistrate N. E. Nabb, at Wallonia, several of their stamped, self addressed envelopes and Magistrate Nabb never returned any to the Company and so retained them in his possession.

Shortly after receiving the letter Mr. Wallace received one of the disgraced attentions which have disgraced the community, and his barn was burned and his tobacco destroyed.

MR. AYRES' REPORT.

The Leader says: State Fire Marshal, Mott Ayres was certainly justified in declaring in his annual report: "The author of the letter is known to this department," and he undoubtedly had Magistrate Nabb in mind when he penned that sentence. Magistrate Nabb did write the letter, but as we have already said, whether he was in any wise a guilty or felonious participant in the tobacco burning which followed the letter, we expressly disclaim any knowledge, simply leaving that matter to everybody to decide for himself upon the facts as they may appear to him.

A simple justice to the State Fire Marshal has impelled us to give these facts, especially as one or two of our contemporaries, notably the Cadiz Record in its issue of May 30, have undoubtedly endeavored to create the impression that Fire Marshal Ayres, had made an unfounded charge.

An obvious effort has been made to cover up any evidence of the threats of the tobacco burning outrages and a despicable attempt has been made to place Fire Marshal Ayres in a false position in reference to the investigation of these outrages. Numerous publications have been made with a view to creating the impression that after Fire Marshal Ayres had notified the Trigg county authorities of evidence that might lead to the conviction of the criminals he failed to appear before the grand jury and give the proper information. Fire Marshal Ayres furnished to the grand jury through the proper channel all of the evidence which we have reproduced herewith except the opinions of the experts, which it was not his duty to supply. His actual presence before the grand jury was prevented by the illness of his wife and other official duties, and even if he had been there he could have added nothing to the documentary evidence which he submitted to the grand jury.

The Leader also prints affidavits of S. S. Eastwood, Charles Merriweather, Lewis Ryan and M. R. Teedale, experts in handwriting. The first two give it as their opinions to "moral certainty," and the others state positively that the threatening letter and an official document signed by N. E. Nabb in 1903 were written by the same person. Col. Ayres himself makes the same direct charge.

THE MAN IN KHAKI

By CELIA MYROVER ROBINSON.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The telegraph instruments were clicking off their tidings of life and death incessantly, monotonously, insistently. Betty put her hand to her head with a gesture of weariness. All day she had been sending off messages of distress to wives, mothers, sweethearts. Her heart was sick within her. Now, as the clock struck six, she was glad to meet the manager's cheery smile of dismissal and hurry out into the fresh April air. She boarded a North Hill car and then sat with pale, tired face, thinking of the awful calamity. Only last year three men had been killed in the harbor of Pensacola by an explosion on one of the ships. To-day 33 had been killed by the bursting of a big gun on the great battleship Iowa. Thirty-three souls—brothers, sons, husbands, fathers—dashed into eternity in a moment of time.

On Decoration day Betty picked her prettiest roses. "I am going down to the services at the National cemetery," she told her mother, "and I shall put these flowers on the new-made graves. Perhaps some heart would be comforted a little if she knew that her boy would not be quite forgotten."

As she knelt that afternoon beside a grave, scattering roses on the new sod, a man came and stood beside her, watching the white-robed figure, wistfully, as the sweet face bent above the loving task.

As Betty rose she saw him standing beside her. He was a soldier dressed in the uniform of a non-commissioned officer. The face under the thatch of curly chestnut hair was very good to look upon.

As Betty Rose She Saw Him Standing Beside Her.

Betty smiled at him kindly and pointed to the flowers.

"There aren't many," she said, "but I thought I would do what I could. There isn't much one can do."

"Oh, the little more and how much it is; Oh, the little less, and what world's away," quoted the sergeant, as he returned the smile, with interest.

"You see," he went on, "it is just that little more that is so very much—the little more of kindness and good-will. A mother praying for her boy to-night would bless you if she knew."

"Maybe she will know, someday," said Betty, softly. "If I knew who and where she was I would write to her."

"I know where she is," said the soldier. "The boy who lies here was an old playmate of mine and his mother lives in a little town in Maine. I shall write to her to-night. Will you send her a message?"

"Yes," said the girl, impulsively. "Give her my love and tell her that this grave shall be my special care. That I shall tend it and at least 12 times each year she may feel sure that there are flowers on it."

Then her mother came and Betty, with a little friendly nod, left him, with a little friendly nod, left him.

It would be hard to tell whose thoughts were the busiest with the other for the next few days. The young non-commissioned officer could not keep Betty's sweet face and voice out of his mind. The golden hair and the blue eyes haunted him. As for Betty, now and then as she sat at her work she fell to dreaming, always of a young man in a uniform of Khaki, with curly chestnut hair, who quoted Browning.

One day as Betty sat clicking away, this time a cheery message of wedding congratulations, the dream she was dreaming materialized, and her soldier stood before her.

How surprised he was when he saw Betty. She blushed and was just a little discomposed, but she gave him a very friendly nod, which he returned, eagerly.

Then he drew out a letter from his pocket.

"I did not dare hope for this," he said, as she came forward. "I came in to send a message to my father; I did not know that you were here. I have hoped to see you because I wanted to give you this." And he handed her a note.

It was from the mother in far-off Maine and Betty's eyes were full of tears as she read the kind words of thanks.

"But you had a message for me, had you not?" she asked.

He gave her the message and after a few words, rather formal on both sides, he took his departure.

This was the message he had given Betty to send and she could not but read it with more than ordinary interest:

"To Chas. H. Livingstone, Esq., Auditor Solid Insurance Company, Pierrefont, Canada. I have to-day received honorable discharge from army. Will be with you in a fortnight. Chas. H. Livingstone, Jr."

It was three days later that Betty boarded a North Hill car on her way home, to find only one vacant seat and that beside a handsome man in a suit of gray tweeds. She did not at first recognize him in civilian clothes, but when he lifted his hat she knew the curly crop and the smile in the dark eyes. The man in Khaki had worn a mustache but this young man was clean-shaven.

Betty thought him handsomer than ever. As for Livingstone, Betty was his one dream, now, and in the light of her sweet smile he was emboldened to say:

"I wrote a letter to the mother in Maine to-day. I expect to see her soon. I am going away."

"Yes, I know," said Betty. "I'm so sorry." Then she blushed. "I couldn't help knowing, you see. I read your telegram."

"I know," he said, "but I would like to tell you more."

"Yes," said Betty, "but we have almost reached my corner." Then, impulsively, "I'll tell you—get off with me and come in for a little while. Maybe it is the last time we shall ever be together."

"Ships that pass in the night and speak each other in passing," he said, with a wistful smile. "Thank you, Miss—"

"Manning," said Betty, with another blush.

"Miss Manning. You are very good. I will come if I may." And so when the car stopped at Betty's corner they got off together and by the time they had walked the half block to Betty's gate they were chatting like old friends.

He stayed an hour sitting on the jessamine covered gallery and he told Betty much of his past life—of how, a foolish, wild boy, he had gambled and, after contracting a debt of honor which his father had to pay, had run away from home. He had thought it would be an easy thing to earn a fortune—he found he could not even earn a living. He drifted to Pensacola and after weeks of desperation, finally enlisted in the army.

"The day after my enlistment," he said, "I got a letter from my father. They had had detectives tracing me and had located me here. He sent me a check for $100 and a letter from my mother begging me to come home. But it was too late. I had made up my mind that I would be a man, even though a common soldier; that I would never gamble again, nor drink. I never have, from that day. I am going home next week, but I am counting back—on that is, if I may, Betty."

He said the name fondly, but briefly. "Betty, if I make a man of myself—I I redeem my wasted life, may I come back—to you?"

"Your life is not wasted," said Betty. "You are every inch a man."

"Then—"

"You may come back," said Betty, tremulously.

"Betty," he whispered, softly, "may I kiss you?"

And for answer Betty lifted her face to his.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR

COSTUMES IN SHANTUNG SILK AND CHIFFON

Some one has spoken of the present year as a "season of plaids" but this is only true of tailor-made for morning wear; one rarely, if ever, sees a plaid gown worn in the afternoon. On the other hand, stripes are in the full flood of favor, in every possible material; gray and white stripes and dull blue and white stripes are immensely fashionable and in many cases the striped materials are worked with plain-faced cloths in a particularly effective manner.

Recently I saw a costume of this order carried out in dull shades of gray, with the best effects. The skirt which was round and fully gored, was made of the striped material, and there was a deep hem of plain cloth, headed by handsome braiding in a rather dark shade of gray. There was a very short coat—which barely reached below the waist—with a sac back and double-breasted front; the coat itself was made of plain cloth, but the lower portion of the Kimono sleeves showed stripes, and there was a blouse of chalk white guipure inset with motifs of embroidered muslin. It was a most original-looking little gown, and was accompanied by a cloche of Tuscan straw, with dark gray velvet ribbons twisted round the crown and hanging in a bunch of ends at the right side, over the brim, and a clump of purple violets close to the front.

A novel fabric which should claim considerable attention for the making of summer dresses, either in bodice and skirt style or Chinese coat and skirt fashion, is Tusore silk striped, producing admirable effects in mixtures of blue and white, and holland color and white, and mauve and white. I have seen these excellently made, and very simply trimmed with cross-way bands of the same material, with the bodice or coat showing pendant tassels to match, the under-sleeves and the vest being of tucked lawn.

Also I would hold a brief for plain Tusore, or Shantung, as the authorities have now elected to call it, while they have dyed it in every conceivable color, and also accept it with pleasure when it assumes its most natural aspect, a straw tint. No costume looks better than a plain Tusore

An Exquisite Design in Voile Dress, gown well cut and simply made, crowned with a brown mushroom hat with a floating veil. I quote this as an example of successful simplicity, the coat or bodice of the gown being made to suit the individual figure goes without saying, since this should be a modish mandate of perennial popularity.

The serious rival to Tusore silk is voile, which, however, not leading itself to be made into coats, needs must be relegated to bodices whose waists should be determined according to fancy. Many waists of voile gowns are cut low in front and high at the back, enveloped with a broad belt, and very effective this is in combination with the wide sleeves, and decorated with either many filler or embroidery at the hem of the slightly gathered skirt.

Good combinations of color will do much to stamp individuality on frocks of this pattern, and there are some all together adorable alliances being made between heliotrope and blue, dull pink and purple, puce and Wedgwood, and most admirable voiles dress all of one tone takes a yellowish shade, almost buff, and looks well under the influence of trimmings of thick croch, last to match.

Feather boas are making their reappearance, and are mostly shaded with two colors. Many reach to the bust, others to the waist, and others again to the knees, while tassels of silk or feathers terminate them, and velvet ribbons also sometimes do this decorative duty.

Hats are being pushed further and further back, until there is as much hair to be seen from the forehead as from the nape of the neck; indeed, in many cases there is more to be seen at the front than the back. Such a state of affairs is by no means conducive to a trim outline, but it attains favor, and no doubt will continue to do so during the whole of this season. To such millinery I confess I do not pay that fealty which I usually bestow upon any fashion just for fashion's sake, for in truth I do not think it is becoming to one woman out of a thousand, and I am convinced that the other 999 will wear it with enthusiasm.

The outline is open and low, the trimming pendant at the back, a wreath of flowers being most popular round the brim. And now a word concerning the dresses displayed in our pictures. In the larger illustration are shown two costumes, the one on the left being in the new, banana colored Shantung silk, striped faintly with red, and the other is of white chiffon pointed with trailing stripes of black ribbon, alternating with antique bands of narrow silver lace and finished off in true lover's knot bows where the whiteness of the chiffon merges into an encircling band of dove blue, patterned with shadowy pink roses, this in its turn being succeeded by a band of silver tissue veiled with a cowbeby black and headed by folds of plain pink, blue and silver, and a trail of tiny silken blossoms wrought in blue and pink silk. All this exquisite detail is repeated on the bodice, with the addition of some cowbeby lace, sundry silken and silver tassels, and a knot of black ribbon, catching in a long-stalled rose while a togue where quite a bouquet of pink roses against the hair in front, and three pale blue ostrich feathers curve over the back. In a worthy crown for an exquisite gown.

The dress in our smaller illustration is one of the latest designs in voile and is both exquisite and graceful.

"Toffee" as Made in England.

It may be possible that there are some persons who grow old so thoroughly that they actually forget that they ever were children, but I can't help wondering if any man or woman ever lived to such an age as to become impervious to the delights of "toffee," or the butter scotch that has made Doncaster a household word to every civilized nation under the sun.

Of course, you have eaten it—to the joy of your soul and to the detriment of your teeth—and, if you will promise not to repeat it, I will give you the secret recipe for this candy, for it is made nowhere as in England: Take three pounds of "coffee" or "C" sugar, butter to the amount of a pound and a quarter, with half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. First dissolve the sugar in just as much cold water as may be required for that purpose, then mix all the ingredients together, and boil them, without stirring the mixture until it will snap when dropped into cold water. At this moment remove it from the fire; add eight or ten drops of lemon extract, according to its strength, and pour the mixture into well-greased pans to be cut into squares as it cools.—From Old and Ends of Culinary Geography, by Miles Bradford in The Bohemian for January.

Prune Salad.
Prunes served as a salad are a novelty that is decidedly worth trying. In France, after macerating, are soaked in sherry and then candied with walnut or pecans, put on the crispest, palest lettuce leaves and dressed with a dressing of forcing twice the amount of lemon juice as it has oil, and mustard, celery salt and pepper. It's a delicious salad.

S. W. Hager, Democratic nominee for Governor, has announced his position on the liquor question in answer to a letter from the editor of a temperance paper. He declares himself in favor of the county unit law and the further extension of it, and also pledges himself, if elected, to a strict enforcement of the laws regarding Sabbath observance.

State Fire Marshal Mott Ayers has brought against Esq. N. E.
Nabb of Wallonia, formal charges of writing a threatening letter to one of the subsequent victims of back burners in Lyon county. He backs his charges by the affidavits of several experts that the handwritings of the letter sent to Robt.
Wallis and that of Esq. Nabb on an official document are the same. The

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

evidence in the case before it, but grand jury will not meet for some time yet. In the meantime Esq.

Nabb has, so far as we have seen, entered no published denial and the association has taken no public cognizance of the sworn charges made against him. Esq. Nabb is an officer of the association, who succeeded Mr. S. G. Buckner, of this city, as

THE CIGARETTE CASE

SILENT TOKEN OF AN OLD MAN'S DEEP GRATITUDE.

Lieutenant in the British Army Finds Opportunity for Active Service on the Strand. Snatching Unknown Donor From Death.

One day last December an old gentleman was walking leisurely along the Strand, London.

It may be that his thoughts were bent on the brightly-lighted shops, more resplendent than usual now with Christmas wares of every sort.

Or it may be that he was intent on the constant stream that flowed by.
Some people elbowed past him, his pace no pace for them; others brushed against him rudely, eager to proceed in an opposite direction.

Sadly he may have recalled the days of his youth, when the young were taught to respect the old, and treat them with courtesy.

Let us follow the old gentleman in his movements.

The sight is not a very exciting
one. There is nothing to imagine that within a few minutes he will be standing on the curb pale and trembling at the thought of a horrible death from which he had been snatched in the nick of time.

The old gentleman suddenly turns to the right, and makes as if to cross the street. At the edge of the pavement he pauses and glances cautiously before him.

Seemingly the way is sufficiently clear for him to venture across.

He steps on to the asphalt road, unconscious that bearing rapidly down on him is a motor bus.

Then he sees the danger.
Retreat appears impossible. The great red car is almost on him.

Something suddenly grips the old gentleman by the arm. He feels himself as it were snatched into the air.

Something Suddenly Grips the Old Gentleman by the Arm.

and in a confused whirl of machinery
he senses the bus lumber heavily by.
Almost powerless with horror, he realizes that a strong arm is supporting him. And then he sees that he is safe, and standing on the pavement that a moment before he had so in-cautiously left.

A minute or two passes. The old gentleman, too overcome to speak, gazes wonderingly at his deliverer,
for such no doubt must be the rescuer handed him his card.

And now comes the pleasant sequel to this adventure. Some time later, when Mr. Hugh Foster, who is a lieutenant in the Hampshire Volunteers, returned to his office, he learned that an old gentleman had left a parcel for him.

With no thought of the incident in his mind, Mr. Foster opened the parcel.

A look of surprise came over his face as he lifted out from a wrapping of tissue paper a solid gold cigarette case.

Then the thought flashed through his mind—this must be from the old gentleman to whom he had lent so freely a hand. But, search as he might every scrap of paper that the parcel contained, Mr. Foster could find no sign of any name.

Even that of the jeweller from whom the case had been bought had been carefully cut from the box.

HERNDON NOTES.

Movements of People in South Christian.

Herndon, Ky., June 10.—It seems as if summer is trying to make up for lost time and now people are complaining because "it's so hot."

The farmers who were lucky enough to have plants are through setting tobacco. There is no complaint of not having seasons to set it, but such a scarcity of plants has never been known in the neighborhood before.

The hail storm Friday night did considerable damage to young corn and the lightning played havoc with telephones.

Misses Nell Dawson and Mary Major are guests of Miss Annie L. White at Howell.

Miss Sallie Faulkner, who has been attending school at Bowling Green, is at home to spend vacation.

Miss Louis Pace spent last week in Hopkinsville.

Mrs. E. L. Gates returned Saturday after a pleasant visit to friends in Greenville, Ky.

Miss Ada Adcock, of Church Hill is the guest of Mrs. S. W. Johnston this week.

Miss Katie Mitchell left today, for an extended visit to friends in Hopkinsville.

Miss Effie Dawson of Roaring Springs, spent several days with Mrs. A. W. Crenshaw last week.

Miss Willie Williams, who was the guest of the Misses Roberts for several days, left for her home in Mississippi, Saturday night.

Several members of the "Old Maids" club of Beverly are regular attendants at Sunday School here, seems as if that club will lose one of its most popular members before long. Perhaps they won't leave this neighborhood though.

Quarterly meeting will be held at the M. E. church here this month, Saturday and Sunday in this month.

Badly Mixed Up.

Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience; he says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison, and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them said me; so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed. Guaranteed to cure blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, sold by R. C. Hardwick, druggist, 50c."

YOUNG PHYSICIAN.

Declared Insane and Brought to Asylum.

Dr. B. D. Woodburn, of Central City, was received at the Western asylum, Monday evening for treatment. He was adjudged of unsound mind several weeks ago, but escaped and went to Louisville. Last Friday he came to Henderson, where he was taken in charge, and the asylum officials were later notified. Dr. Woodburn is a graduate of the Louisville Medical College and is a son of Dr. J. T. Woodburn, a leading physician of Central City and president of the Central City Deposit Bank. Over study is said to have caused the derangement of the young man.

Telegraphy.

The fact that telegraph operators are taught and sent out to railroad positions almost every week, by the Bowling Green Business University, is sufficient evidence of the thoroughness of the training by that institution. This is now one of the largest commercial schools in America and the enrollment is increasing every year. The University has the largest Telegraphy School in the South, and the third largest in the world.

MONTHLY MEETING

Of Planters Association Will Be Held Monday.

The Planters' Association will hold their regular monthly meeting here next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Farmers generally are invited to attend and all members of the association are urged to be present on the occasion, which promises to be of unusual interest. Reports of the amount of tobacco planted in Christian county will be read at the meeting, and considerable business will be transacted.

ON HIS DEATH BED.

Claims Bride When Had Only Hour to Live.

Louisville, Ky., June 10.—Lying on his death bed and knowing that he could live only a few hours, Robert Horner, son of a Philadelphia millionaire and vice president and general manager of the Kosmos Portland Cement company was married yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Norton infirmary to Miss Elizabeth Dallam Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burnett, of 1521 Fourth avenue, this city, who was to have become his bride Tuesday. Six hours later he died in the presence of relatives from Philadelphia, whose mission of joy in coming to attend the celebration of his marriage to Miss Burnett was turned to one of sorrow.

Mr. Horner, a few days ago, took out $25,000 insurance for his wife to be and before he died commended her to the care of his family.

EDITORS WILL MEET.

Gathering of the State Association at Estill Springs.

Danville, Ky., June 10.—The full program for the annual meeting of the Kentucky Press Association, which will be held at Estill Springs next week, has been announced.

All members of the western portion of the State will be expected to rendezvous in Louisville on the afternoon and evening of June 16, in order to take the Southern special coach out on Monday morning at 7:30 for Versailles, where the L. & N. will take the entire party to Estill. The association will be entertained by the Commercial Club of Versailles during the interim between the arrival and departure of the trains.

TELEPHONE WINS.

Draws First Blood In The Paducah Case.

The demurrer entered by the City of Paducah to the injunction suit filed against the city by the East Tennessee Telephone company was overruled Saturday by Judge Walter Evans, of the United States court, to which the suit was carried. The city will be given until August in which to file answer to the proceedings of the telephone company. This is a victory for the telephone people so far. The municipality was represented by Hon. Hal S. Corbett and City Solicitor James Campbell, Jr., who have returned from Louisville. The telephone company was represented by Charles K. Wheeler, of the city.—News Democrat.

DEDICATION

Of Lebanon Church Sunday A Great Event.

The Princeton Leader says: More than a thousand people were present at the dedication of the new Baptist church at Lebanon Sunday, June 9th, Bro. J. U. Spurlin, assisted by Pastor Ramey, officiated. Bro. Spurlin is 83 years old and has been a preacher of the gospel 64 years. Has baptized more than five thousand people. Notwithstanding the great age of this old patriarch in the cause of Christ, it was conceded by all that his sermon on this occasion was the best he had ever preached.

BODY CLEANING EVERY SPRING MORE URGENT THAN HOUSE CLEANING

Many Women Have Discovered That a Course of Treatment With Pe-ru-na Cleanses the System of the Accumulations of Winter.

MRS. ALICE BRADLEY.

Mrs. Alice Bradley, Thorold, Ont., Can., writes: "Two years ago I became weak and run down and as time passed I gradually failed until a year ago, when I experienced a stroke of paralysis, which affected one side and I was helpless. I called in professional medical treatment, but steadily grew worse."

"I had decided I never would rise again from my bed, but when Peruna was brought to me and after having taken four bottles of it, I was able to be out and a wonder to myself and friends."

"I consider Peruna a great blessing to the afflicted. I may add that my daughter has also used Peruna and has been blessed with renewed health. I believe Peruna saved our lives."

Clean Up Once a Year.

CLEANING up the body in the spring is a duty everyone owes to himself. So power may hide a rough skin, but Peruna helps to produce a skin that need not be hidden.

The source of good blood is good digestion. Peruna aids digestion. Those people who have regular bodily functions have a clear and delicate skin. Peruna helps to restore these functions. Most skin deformities depend upon systemic derangements, which cannot be corrected by local treatments. Peruna is a systemic remedy, reorganizes, and regulating the whole body.

Mrs. N. P. Lawler, 423 1/2 N. Broadway, Pittsburg, Kas., writes:

"Last spring I caught a severe cold which developed into a serious case of catarrh. I felt weak and sick and could neither eat nor sleep well."

"A member of our club, who had been cured of catarrh through the use of Peruna, advised me to try it and I did so at once."

"I expected help, but nothing like the wonderful change for the better I observed almost as soon as I started taking it."

"In three days I felt much better, and within a week I was well."

"I continued taking the entire bottle and within two weeks I was health."

Health and Complexion, Strength and B Depend Upon Clean Blood and Good Digestion.

Mrs. Daniel Passmore, Welland, Ontario, Can., writes: "For three years I was severely afflicted with ach trouble, and for days at a time I could not eat anything. I grew thin in flesh, had headaches and a picture of despair."

"I was attended by three doctors, but got no results."

"Finally I began the use of Peruna. I soon saw an improvement and after using three bottles, able to relish a meal, in fact, could eat anything."

"Today I feel well and strong. I consider that no has saved my life and I shall always praise it."

MRS. DANIEL PASSMORE.

and within two weeks I was health."

"Peruna is a wonderful medicine. Mr. Lee King, R. F. D. No. 4, F. ville, Tex., writes."

"My health has been better for four years and I have worked every day."

"I suffered with dysentery and trouble."

"Your remedy also cured my constipation."

"I wish you continued success your great medicine, Peruna."

PROFITIOUS PERIOD

For All Classes of People is Selected.

The interest in the Kentucky State Fair this year leads the Kentucky State Board of Agriculture, which is in direct charge, to believe that it will be the largest attended event of any kind ever held in the State. The dates—Sept. 16-21—form a most propitious period for all classes of people. The displays in all departments will be more complete than ever before, while the amusements and the music will furnish a further excuse to citizens in all sections to make Louisville their Mecca during the week of September 16th.

SARDOU'S CHRISTMAS DINNER

An Amusing Incident That Occurred During the Siege of Paris.

Victorin Sardou, the dramatist, tells the following story: "On Christmas day, 1870, that is to say toward the end of the siege, I received leave of absence, having been ordered to a celebrated restaurant. On the way a stranger accosted me. 'O! Sardou, I have something for you,' indicating the basket he carried, 'provided you will pay enough for it.' 'What is it—a curio?' I asked. 'Much better still; something for Christmas dinner,' he said, and, after a pause, whispered: 'A calf's head.' Observing my incredulity, he uncovered the basket and showed me it—admirable and fragrant, on a bed of parsley. I resolved to have it at any price, paid the then remarkably low price of 60 francs ($12) without grumbling and bade him follow me to the restaurant, where I turned it over to the waiter with instructions to prepare it carefully for the dinner that I was giving.

"In the midst of the dinner, after struggling with an unusually tough horse steak, I announced a surprise. 'What is it?' my guests all exclaimed together. 'A ham? Fried eels? Stuffed turkey?' 'No, something far better than that,' I said, impressively. 'A calf's head.' My words were received with spontaneous cheering, as the smiling head waiter put in an appearance and carefully set down a large platter, toward which all eyes were instantly turned. But—will miracles never cease?—instead of the coveted calf's head there was a thick and greasy yellow liquid! 'By the Lord Harry!' I cried, turning furiously on the waiter. 'My head! My head!' 'Your head,' he answered, submissively, 'that is, monsieur.' 'What's that?' 'It has melted, monsieur, melted down to that.' It turned out that the head was made of molded gelatin and so carefully indicated that the manufacturer, I have since heard, was able to dispose of 30 among gentry as naive as myself."

CORRECTED.

The Affable Stranger—They say she's worth pots of money. The Other—It's a confounded lie. She's my wife!

WISE DUCHESS.

Whatever may be the fate of Russia's reigning family when the revolutionists get through with that country, one member of it will be beyond the reach of want. She is Grand Duchess Olga, eldest of the czar's daughters. Although still a child, she has a fortune estimated at $10,000,000 in her own right. Moreover, her millions are invested abroad, where the terrorists cannot get them.

A GENIUS IN RAGS.

August Wilhelm, the famous violinist, of London, discovered a little boy by the name of Leopold Lustig playing the violin on the streets of the metropolis. He took him home and gave him some instruction, and the boy will shortly appear on the London concert platform.

THE "FURNISHED" COTTAGE.

Todd—Why didn't you rent one furnished?

Nodd—I did, but that doesn't make any difference.—Town and Country.

OLDEST LIVING GRADUATE.

A BOY'S EXPENSE ACCOUNT

His Father Found Good Way to Teach Him the Value of Money.

"When I look back at my life and training there is one thing that I always regret," said the man who thinks he has not done as well as he should. "When my boy looks back at his early training it is my hope that he will have nothing to regret. I probably would have been a richer man to-day had I learned the value of money when I was a boy. I surely would have been a richer man to-day had I learned to keep an accurate account of every cent that I spend. An expense account is one of the greatest necessities in life.

"When I started my boy in on an allowance I also gave a note book to him with the following instructions: 'Boy, I'm going to give you 25 cents a week from now on, to spend as you wish, but under one condition. Every penny that you spend, no matter what for, you must make a note of it in this book.'"

"He took the book. I taught him simple bookkeeping. He had a credit and debit side to his book and entered each item with great care. "For several years he has done this, and now, although he is quite a large boy, he keeps an accurate account of every cent that he spends. I've seen him puzzle for an hour over a difference of five cents in his account."

"It already has done him great good, and I feel sure that when he gets into business his accuracy in money matters will stand him in good stead."

"A true appreciation of the value of money is something hard to teach a child. Father represents an infinite supply of pennies to the child mind. Give the boy an allowance and an expense book and turn him loose; it won't take him long to learn to live within his income, no matter how small it may be."

CHARITY NATURALLY PAINFUL

Gen. Booth, the head of the Salvation Army, was discussing the anti-suicide bureau that his church has opened.

"Kindness and charity," he said, "are factors of these bureaus. The charity will be of the right kind, I trust. There are, you know, two kinds of charity, and too much of it is like the barber's."

"There was a poor deacon in Warwick who had no money and needed to be shaved, and he went from barber to barber, but none of them, despite his holy office, was willing to shave him for nothing.

"In the end, though, he found a barber who, on hearing his tale, said gruffly: "Sit down there in that chair." "And this barber shaved him. But the razor he used! Dear me! It's dull edge, and the nicks in it! Under the operation the tears flowed in rivulets down the poor deacon's cheeks.

"Suddenly the barber's dog in the adjacent room set up a terrific howling.

"Be still, there!" cried the barber. And he muttered anxiously: "What can he be doing to him?" "Alas!" said the deacon. "I shouldn't wonder if some one was shaving him out of charity."

JUST THINK OF IT.

Doctor—You look worse to-day, Mr. Toser—how's that?
Mr. Toser—I've been reading the food expert's report, and, as far as I can make out, I've been living on germs and microbes all my life.

DIRECTNESS AND ACCURACY.

MARK.
DOCTOR PIERCE'S AIM ALWAYS HAS BEEN TO GIVE POSITIVE AND VALUABLE SERVICE FOR EVERY DOLLAR RECEIVED, THEREFORE WHEN HE BEGAN PROFESSIONAL LIFE HE SOUGHT TO

AIM STRAIGHT AND HIT THE MARK.

especially in the treatment of a very large class of cases that were being maltreated by many physicians through ignorance of their real nature. This necessitated going to the roots of troubles in two special senses.—IN CAREFUL, EXHAUSTIVE STUDY TO KNOW WHAT WAS THE REAL CAUSE OF THE IMMENSE aches, pains, drains and weaknesses which afflicted women, and AGAIN TO THE ROOTS WHICH NATURE HAD PROVIDED SO plentifully for the HEALING OF MARKING. Thoroughly convinced that alcoholic stimulants and medicines prepared with alcohol did far more harm than good, Dr. Pierce prepared his remedies, extracted their virtues and preserved them without alcohol, then, guided by actual experience, formed combinations by which a minimum of medicine produced the maximum result. This insured his success and gave him the reputation of "the successful specialist," and, quite naturally, the prescription that he thus sold of their best was "his FAVORITE," and was the origin of that had run into great popularity because it cured more than ninety-eight out of every hundred of the cases in which it was correctly used. One of the important ingredients of this now famous "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" is

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as now known. In no sense is it a "patent medicine," or even a secret one, but a REAL PRESCRIPTION OF A REAL DOCTOR.

BLUE COHOSH ROOT, which was a great remedy among the Americans a century ago. The squares used for the relief of their special troubles, particularly for the easing of the pains of maternity, calling it "Pain-Expeller." Then there are four other ingredients in this "Prescription," namely: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Golden Seal root and Unicorn root.

It Stands Alone not only in respect to its known composition, but also as the only specific, advertised remedy for women's diseases which absolutely CONTAINS NO ALCOHOL.

It Stands Alone as the one medicine the makers of which take time for women, fully into their confidence and tell them exactly what they are taking. This is the reason why it is so successful. "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" is made of such ingredients as after a long working formula that has thousands of cures to its credit, placing its merits above criticism.

100-page Doctor Book sent free on receipt of 25 stamps to cover postage only. SENATOR FOR 30 YEARS.

Was Soldier, Statesman And Leader Whose Place Cannot Be Filled.

Washington, June 12.—United States Senator John Tyler Morgan, of Alabama, died here at 11:15 o'clock last night.

John Tyler Morgan was born at Athens, Tenn., June 20, 1824. He received an academic education, chiefly in Alabama, to which State he emigrated when nine years old, and where he had since resided. Senator Morgan was elected to the United States Senate to succeed George Goldthwaite, Democrat, and he first took his seat on March 5, 1877. He was re-elected in 1882 and in 1894. Senator Morgan was nominated for a fifth term in the Senate by a caucus of the Democratic party, and also by a meeting of the Republican and Populist parties, who differed with him politically, and on November 17, 1900, was chosen by the unanimous vote of the Senate and House of Representatives of Alabama for a fifth term, and re-elected for a sixth term.

The social session held at the Elks club rooms Monday night in honor of Mayor Meacham, T. C. Underwood, Rob Fairleigh and John B. Jonett Henry was requested in a letter to start the session and at his request Mayor Meacham acted as toastmaster. Speeches, jokes and a good time generally took up the time from 8 to 11:30 o'clock.

BUILDING NOTES.

We wish we were able to give forth the news that Hopkinsville was to have a government building. The urgent need of such a place for the transaction of the large and steadily increasing business of the local office is patent to all. Since the introduction of the rural free deliveries and the delivery in the city by carriers more room is absolutely necessary. In fact it would be hard to name anything that is not needed—more light, water, steam heat, an electric light plant, and other things would all be included in a public building. There is a numerous signed petition, filed away somewhere in Washington, in which our people ask for a building somewhat commensurate with the rapidly growing population and consequent growth of transactions in the postoffice.

Again the department wants to put on another carrier in the city. The aim is to extend the routes of the carriers, if possible, to the city limits. One of the conditions demanded is that all houses shall be numbered and sidewalks put down in front of the houses. The council will at once have the houses numbered on the new streets and others, and as to sidewalks Hopkinsville is already the best paved city in Kentucky and work in this line is continually going on.

Workmen are nearly through combing and brushing the concrete walls of the Y. M. C. A. building and it is certainly a great improvement. As to when the interior work is to be finished we are not advised. "One good turn deserves another," and if our people would come to the rescue as they did in paying off the debt of the tabernacle it would be a good thing and of lasting benefit to the city. Why not finish up the lower floor and rent the rooms until the amount needed is raised to complete the building throughout?

The much talked of plan of making the lake of the Water Company a resort for picnickers, boating parties, etc., and, alibitum, and so on, seems to have died abominably, so far as our information goes. The whole thing seems to have been nothing but air and water—cold water and hot air, so to speak. If there is anything else in it, we would be glad to be better informed and more than delighted to make the correction.

For the past several months there has been a great deal said about widening the stone bridges on North Main and East 7th streets and the new street to run through the Means property and connect North Main with one of the streets running north from West 7th street will no doubt be opened soon.

Brick laying will soon begin on the Forbes Mfg. Co.'s large office building at 10th and Main. The front will be of white brick. The brick are perhaps a little different from any heretofore used here. They are made of 90 per cent. white sand and 10 per cent. lime, hydraulic cement pressed. They will make a beautiful front.

Plans have been submitted to builders here for two different additions to the Western Lunatic asylum. Dalton Bros. received drawings for the brick walls Tuesday. The additions may cost approximately $7,000 to $8,000.

The Climax Mill building is completed. The big engine has been planted and the dynamo for lighting the building throughout will soon be in also. Everything is on the rush to be ready for starting July 1st, to grind the new crop of wheat.

Plans are in the hands of contractors for the erection of the large department house of J. H. Anderson & Co. It is expected that bids will all be in in a short time now. The magnificent structure will be ready for the fall trade.

Mr. J. F. Garnett has placed in the hands of contractors the plans and specifications for his new store room to adjoin the Anderson department building, we learn. This building is to be ready by the end of the year.

The handsome new homes of Messrs. Lucian H. Davis and Monroe Dalton, on East 7th street, are going up rapidly.

T. J. Tate's large new residence is to be completed by fall and work is progressing rapidly.

John J. Metcalf, who recently bought the Tibbs house, is moving in. He will spend about $1,000 in improvements.

The addition to the Baptist church is being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The large apartment house at 6th and Main streets is going up rapidly. The walls are now up to the floor of the second story.

The bids for the enlargement of the Christian church are all in and the committee is making notes and comparing the bids, every detail being carefully looked into. It will not be many days, we are informed, before the contract is let.

Civil Matters Claiming Attention of Court.

Only Civil matters have been claiming the attention of the court this week and none of any importance to the public has been disposed of. Monday was consumed in the trial of an attachment sent from Edysville. The grand jury which has been in session since June 3, was expected to report its findings yesterday afternoon. Considerable business is yet to be disposed of by that body and it is not likely that an adjournment will be reached for several days. Next week will be devoted to the trial of Commonwealth cases. There are two murder cases set for Monday. The case of Geo. Putman will probably be called first and if trial is entered into the most of the week will probably be consumed in disposing of this case, when the case of the Commonwealth against Harvie Davie, col., will be taken up.
